

NUCHAL TRANSLUCENCY ASSESSMENT

Are your patients eligible for a rebate?

Your patient may be eligible for a Medicare rebate if at least one of the conditions below is present.

- hyperemesis gravidarum;
- diabetes mellitus;
- hypertension;
- (toxaemia of pregnancy;
- liver or renal disease;
- autoimmune disease;
- cardiac disease;
- alloimmunisation;
- maternal infection;
- inflammatory bowel disease;
- bowel stoma;
- abdominal wall scarring;
- previous spinal or pelvic trauma or disease;
- drug dependency;
- thrombophilia;
- significant maternal obesity;
- advanced maternal age;
- abdominal pain or mass;
- uncertain dates;
- high risk pregnancy;
- previous post dates delivery;
- previous caesarean section;
- poor obstetric history;
- suspicion of ectopic pregnancy;
- risk of miscarriage;
- diminished symptoms of pregnancy;
- suspected or known cervical incompetence;
- suspected or known uterine abnormality;
- pregnancy after assisted reproduction;
- risk of foetal abnormality.

Nuchal Translucency scanning is to be performed between 11 weeks, 5 days and 13 weeks, 6 days. Please provide a Pathology request for PAPP-A and Beta hCG for your patient to have a few days before our scan.